"Davis, a brilliant maverick scholar, sets the triumph of the late-nineteenth-century Western imperialism in the context of catastrophic El Niño weather patterns at that time ... This is groundbreaking, mind-stretching stuff." —Independent "Late Victorian Holocausts will redefine the way we think about the European colonial project. After reading this, I defy even the most ardent nationalist to feel proud of the so-called 'achievements' of empire."

(The fact that agriculture never developed in Australia before the Industrial Revolution, however, reflects more on its extraordinarily ancient and low-phosphorus soils than El Niño influence). In "Late Victorian Holocausts", Mike Davis does an exceptionally original study of the impact during the nineteenth century of El Niño and La Niña upon more fertile regions of the world, including India, China, Brazil and East Africa.
