In the

beginning, for me, winemaking
was a romanticized notion of putting grape juice into a barrel and allowing time to perform its magic as you sat on the veranda watching the sunset on a

Tuscan
landscape. For some small wineries, this notion might still ring true, but for the majority of wineries
commercially producing quality wines, the reality of winemaking is far more Industrial complex. The persistent

evolution of the wine industry

demands

continual advan-
ments in technology and education to sustain and promote quality winem- ing. The sciences of

Download File

viticulture, enology, and

wine chemistry

are becoming more intricate and

sophisticated

each year. Wine

laboratories

have become an integral part of the winemaking

process,

necessitating a knowledgeable staff possessing a multitude of skills. Science incorporates the tools that new-age winemakers are utilizing to produce some of the best wines ever made in this multibillion dollar trade. A

enology and wine chemistry can find these daunting and intimidating.

Whether you are a home winemaker, a new winemaker, an enology student,
or a beginning-
to-intermediate

Laboratory technician, putting all the pieces together can take time.

As a winemaker
friend once told
is a moving target.”

Introduction to Wine Laboratory Practices and Procedures was written for the multitude of people entering the wine industry and those that wish to learn about

and enology.

Throughout the mining and processing of minerals, the

mined ore undergoes a number of crushing,
grinding,
cleaning,
drying, and product sizing operations as it is processed into a marketable commodity. These operations are highly industrial mechanized, and both individually and collectively

these processes can generate large amounts of dust. If control technologies are inadequate,
hazardous levels
of respirable dust may be potentially exposing

Accordingly,

Our responses to our thermal environment have a considerable effect on our performance and behavior, not least in the realm of work.

There has been considerable scientific investigation of these responses and formal methods have been developed for environmental evaluation and design. In recent years

these have been developed to the extent that detailed national and international standards of practice have

now become feasible. This new edition of

Ken Parson's

definitive text

brings us back up to date. He covers hot,

moderate and cold

environments,

and defines

these in terms of six basic parameters: air temperature,

radiate
temperature,
humidity, air
velocity,
clothing worn,
and the person's activity. There is a focus on the principles and practice of human response, which

Download File

incorporates psychology, physiology and
physics with applied ergonomics.

Water

requirements,

computer

modeling and computer-aided

design are brought in, as

are current industrial standards.

Special

populations,

such as the aged

or disabled and

specialist

such as those found in vehicles are also considered.

This book

continues to be the standard text for the design of environments for humans to live

and work safely, comfortably and effectively, and for the design of materials which help the same people cope with their
environments.
